Internships

Currently there are no internships available.

"This was one of the greatest experiences of my life. If you apply yourself you can get so much out of this internship. This is a job that you'll love to get up and go to every morning, and hate to go home at the end of the day. The staff is very friendly, they don't make you feel like an outsider, they make you feel like you belong part of the group, and they value your input and appreciate your work." -- Phillip Jackson, summer 2001

"If you are looking for a normal internship in public policy then Frontiers of Freedom is not for you. At Frontiers of Freedom you are treated as another member of the staff, not as an intern. The opportunities to contribute in the organization are unbelievable. I learned and gained more work experience in my short time with Frontiers of Freedom than most people get from 3 years in college. It is the highlight of my resume." -- Al Lee, spring 2003

"The uniqueness of an internship with Frontiers of Freedom is that you function as a truly integrated member of the staff. Your opinions and work are respected and promoted. You are given adequate time and independence to pursue projects that will benefit you in the long-run." -- Erin Brown, winter 2004

Special Assistant (SA)

The SA will assist the President, Vice President, and Directors of Development and Operations with fundraising, research, writing, event planning, etc. While all team members at FOF are expected to help with clerical duties this is not a clerical position. The SA will have a unique opportunity to contribute in a substantive way.

All Interns will learn about being a player in the public policy arena and the process of increasing an organization's influence. Interns who are successful will receive several letters of recommendation including one from Senator Malcolm Wallop (Ret.)

Applicants should be interested in our focus issues and adhere to our conservative ideals of government, be familiar with Internet research, and most importantly employ a positive attitude with the highest level of integrity. Interns are expected to contribute to our opinion editorial publication projects. Strong writing skills are a must.

This position is available for both Spring and Summer of 2005 (exact starting and ending dates are flexible)

FOF is located in Chantilly near routes 50 and 66 but is not metro accessible. Preference is given to local candidates with transportation.

The SA will be expected to work a minimum of 20 hours a week. Schedule is flexible based on your studies and other responsibilities. Preference is given to applicants able to work more than 20 hours.

All internships are unpaid.

To apply, please email your resume and brief cover letter to alee@ff.org
